PROJECTS

Employee Management| JAVA

- A core Java project with an interface and implementation class for managing employee records, including features like adding, updating, and deleting employees, searching and sorting employees, and data persistence using a HashMap.
- The project follows OOP principles, including abstraction, encapsulation, and separation of concerns, using an interface and implementation class for data access operations.
- The project's separation of interface and implementation allows for easy maintenance, extensibility, and adaptability to changing requirements while adhering to SOLID principles for the clean code design.

LEADERSHIP/TEAMWORK
